Contest Rules & FAQs

Q: What are the Ma Murray Community News Media Awards?

The Ma Murray Community News Media Awards are hosted by the BCYCNA to celebrate the achievements of the community newspaper industry over the past year. In addition to a variety of specific awards, the Ma Murray Community News Media Awards include Newspaper Excellence Awards in seven circulation categories. Remember, Associate Members may enter some categories, including the new Magazine Excellence category!

Q: How are the winners decided?

The BCYCNA is pleased to bring together an expert panel of judges for all categories, and a panel of three judges for each Newspaper Excellence category. The criteria for each award are outlined on each Award Entry Form. Judges use their discretion to assess the quality of entries, overall scoring, and whether submissions meet entry criteria.

Q: Who can enter?

If your publication is a member in good standing of the BC & Yukon Community News Media Association, you are eligible to enter the competition. Full members are eligible to enter any and all categories. Associate members may enter certain categories only, as specified in the award descriptions. Please see www.bccommunitynews.com/membership/ for membership criteria and refer to the following list to see which categories that Associate Members may enter.

Q: What is the contest period?

All entries must have been published between January 1, 2022 and December 31, 2022.

Q: When will finalists be announced?

The top three finalists in each category will be announced in March 2023.

Q: Are there maximum limits on entries?

Yes. Each publication may only submit three entries per category unless otherwise stated. Your entries are limited to one entry per writer/photographer/designer/team leader in each category. Articles written under a pen name must be attributed to the actual writer. See each Award Entry Form for details.

Q: Can I enter the same story/photo/ad in more than one category?

No. Each entry may only be submitted into one category. Similarly, a piece that is included in a submitted Series or Campaign may not also be entered on its own in an individual category. (For example, an ad entered as part of an Ad Campaign may not also be entered on its own in the Ad Design category.) Newspaper Excellence, Magazine Excellence, and Special Sections/Publications are excluded from this rule. That is, an article/photo/ad that appears in the edition submitted for Newspaper/Magazine Excellence or as part of a Special Section/Publication can still be submitted on its own.

Q: Our publication's circulation changed recently because of the pandemic. How do I know we're in the right circulation category?

Like with last year's competition, our award groupings try to reflect the changes that are happening in the real world. Out of necessity, many publications now put out fewer issues, and so circulation numbers are lower and/or less frequent. This has had a dramatic impact on the awards. Last year you may have noticed that your paper was assigned to a new circulation division for Newspaper Excellence, and that the number range for each group is quite different than in the past. Also, for certain categories that get divided in half based on circulation numbers, we again shifted the dividing line to 10,000 rather than 25,000, so that the quantity of publications on each side is more balanced. We have kept the same groupings as last year.

Q: We have an entry that the whole staff worked on and we don't really want to single out one person as the leader - that would take away from the rest of the team. Why do we have to assign an individual leader's name to each entry?

There is a maximum of three entries from each newspaper in each category. In the individual award categories such as the Feature Article Award, each entry must be from a different author. So, in the categories where a team is more likely to enter than an individual, we must enforce the same rule: each entry must come from a different "author," or team leader. In order to distinguish between teams, you must name a team leader. Please also note that we cannot fit more than four names on an award.

Important note: If we receive more than one entry from a team within one category, and no team leaders are identified, the BCYCNA office will randomly select one team entry for judging and disqualify the others.

Q: Our publication produces a supplement and we would like to enter its articles, photos and ads into Feature Article, Feature Photo, and Ad Design categories. Is this okay?

Yes! In the past, you were not permitted to enter contents of a non-run-of-press publication/supplement. This is no longer the case. Contents of all supplemental publications may now be submitted in individual categories, as long as they are from the member publication's staff or regular freelancers.

Q: How do you define a "series"?

A series should have no less than two articles and no more than five articles on one theme or issue.

Q: How do you define an "ad campaign"?

An ad campaign is a series of ads (minimum of two ads) developed for one client. An ad campaign is not a group of ads for various clients gathered together around a theme.

Q: Our team produced some great work this year. Unfortunately our publication closed/merged with another publication and we now work under a new title. Can we still submit entries from the title that has since closed?

The BCYCNA is saddened by the closure of any of our member publications. However, the Ma Murray Awards are a member service, awarded to member publications and not to individuals, even if those individuals are still working at another title. Unfortunately, we cannot award the honours to defunct titles.

Q: Can I submit a photo/article that only appeared online but not in our printed product?

Yes you can! In the past, you were not permitted to enter materials that only appeared online, but this is no longer the case. Just make sure you provide full online access with dates visible so our judges can verify that it ran during the eligible period.

Q: How do I nominate someone for New Journalist of the Year?

Similar to the Eric Dunning Award for Dedication and Service to the Community News Media Industry, the New Journalist of the Year Award recipients will be nominated by their newspaper. The BCYCNA wants to recognize those new journalists who have been in the industry for two years or less, with a cash prize of $1,000 for each of three recipients. See individual entry forms for more details.

Q: What are the entry fees?

The fee is $25 per entry, except for the Newspaper Excellence category, which is $200, and the Magazine Excellence category, which is $100. All entry fees are subject to GST. Payment may be made by cheque, money order or credit card. You can calculate your entry fees on the "Manage Entries" page of the contest site, and wait for us to send you an invoice during or after the week of February 13, 2023. Or, if you would prefer to send in your payment with your entry, complete and print the payment form from the contest site and email to kerry@bcccommunitynews.com and/or include a hard copy with any entries (Newspaper Excellence, Magazine Excellence, or Special Publications) that you mail in.

Q: When is the deadline for entries and where do I send them?

All entries must be submitted online at www.betterbnc.com no later than 9pm on Monday, January 16, 2023. The corresponding hard copies for Newspaper Excellence, Magazine Excellence, and Special Publications must be received in the BCYCNA office no later than 5pm on Friday, January 20, 2023. Entries received after this date will not be considered.
